Rubenerd Show 402: The hidden PPPoE episode (1/5/20) 24:25

Thanking people for Australian bushfire feedback, Malcolm Turnbull'd internet, pronouncing abbreviations as acronyms (PPPoE... pehpehpehooee?), the Ricoh GR III camera, finding a stream and an old key in a forest near Cammeray, the plight of inefficient portable air conditioners, wooden shelving, and various challenges when selling incomplete anime figures.

Recorded in Sydney, Australia. Licence for this track: Creative Commons Attribution 3.0. Attribution: Ruben Schade.

=====

Rubenerd Show 403: The hot cake episode (1/12/20) 52:15

Forbidden 403 HTML status codes, unhelpful profiling, Australian bushfire updates (looters, conspiracy theories, hot takes), unexpected Adelaide nostalgia and early breakfasts, unintentional philosophical ramblings on the character and motivations of certain people, and an ongoing good natured but otherwise inexplicable retail saga. With thanks to Phil Collins.

Doc Sleaze: Strange Love (1/31/20) 58:21

This time around we celebrate love in its strangest forms. From Hammer Film's early seventies obsession with 'strange love' in the form of lesbian vampires, cross gender mad scientists and crazed killers with father issues, through woman-eating trees, marriage phobia and marrying oneself, to the redemptive power of disco. And remember – love is love, no matter how strange or weird it might be.

'Strange Love' by Tracey from Wembley (love theme from 'Lust for a Vampire') | Hammer films and strange love -the rise of the lesbian vampire (including trailer from 'The Vampire Lovers' (1970)) | Cross gender mad scientists (including 'Dr Jekyll and Sister Hyde' (1971) trailer) | Father issues and mad killers (including 'Hands of the Ripper' (1971) trailer) | Random Movie Trailer – 'Womaneater' (1958) | 'Womaneater' excerpt | Unhappily Ever After | 'Strange Love' by Tracey from Wembley (version 2) | Nuptials for the Single Man | Forgotten Film: 'Nocturna' (1979)
